Tobias: God is good

(Hebrew translation)

This boy is the epitome of what is good. He is sensitive to others and wants nothing more from his day but to smile and make others smile. His struggles to lead a “normal” life are not in his wheelhouse of understanding. What does he understand? Well, he understands correction and praise and does his best to exhibit appropriate responses to both. He understands that dogs love him and need him. He walks the dogs as if he is on a mission, it is serious business. He understands when adults need a smile or attention. He sees joy in others and does his best to give more of that joy if he can. He is an empath and truly feels the spirit of someone in his space. He cares for others if they are sad. He lifts the spirits of the little ones when they act out. Having cerebral palsy and limitations does not stop him from loving others. He exudes the spirit of joy.

“Orphans are easier to ignore before you know their names.

They are easier to ignore before you see their faces.

It is easier to pretend they're not real before you hold them in your arms, but, once you do, everything changes.”

— David Platt

Help Us Build A Sustainable Future In Kenya: Aerobic Septic System Underway

We're thrilled to announce that the long-awaited aerobic septic system at Seeds in His Garden (SIHG) is officially underway! This critical project is more than just a system — it's a turning point for sustainable agriculture, clean water, and better living conditions for the children and community we serve in Kenya.

A Champion for Change

Thanks to the incredible efforts of Angela TenBroeck and her dedicated team, transformation is happening right now on the ground in Kenya. Angela — recently named “Woman of the Year” — has made it her mission to revolutionize food systems and water sustainability across the globe, and we are honored to be part of her journey.

With Kenya facing years of drought and battling the challenges of black cotton soil, this aerobic septic system will not only provide safe waste disposal but will also allow for water reuse — directly supporting our farm, feeding the children, and providing extra income through local food sales.

A Full-Circle Moment

We're especially excited to have Martin, a SIHG success story, return to the grounds to support the project. Now a college graduate and contractor, Martin will oversee progress and keep our board informed. His journey from child to change-maker is a powerful testament to what your support makes possible.

Every Drop Counts, Every Dollar Matters

This project is about more than infrastructure — it's about legacy. The transition building next to the new septic system holds deep meaning for Linda, whose father, Koop, traveled from the Netherlands to lend his hands and heart to this place. His craftsmanship is visible in every tile — a beautiful tribute to his love and dedication, even while battling cancer.

Now, We Need YOU

Angela will be in Kenya until May, and we need your help to keep the momentum going. Your donations will help us:

- Complete the septic system
- Finish the transition building
- Create a reliable, sustainable water reuse system
- Continue growing food for the children and local economy

Let's build a better tomorrow — together.

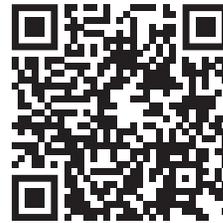

You might not be able to travel to Kenya, but your contribution can make a world of difference. Visit SeedsInHisGarden.org to donate and be a part of the change.

Let's turn compassion into action. Join us.

Make a difference. Help us finish what we've started.

Hearts in Service: Ava Garcia's Journey from the Canary Islands to Kenya

We are so honored to share the story of Ava Garcia, a remarkable volunteer who has brought light, love, and healing to the children at Seeds in His Garden in Kitengela, Kenya. Ava comes to us from the Canary Islands, where she has been working in social services, particularly helping refugees. Her journey to Kenya was encouraged by a special connection — her landlord, a kind gentleman from Monterey, California, who inspired her to take this bold step.

She's also been a true support to Linda — emotionally, spiritually, and physically — as they work together to create a safe, nurturing environment for these beautiful young souls. Originally planning to stay for just three months, Ava extended her time to six months, and we're thrilled to share that she plans to return after visiting her mother back in the Canary Islands.

Ava's selfless service has touched many lives here, and we are incredibly thankful for her heart and dedication. If you feel moved to support Ava in her journey — whether through prayers, words of encouragement, or financial donations for her continued service — we welcome your kindness with open hearts.
